3. Write a precis of the following passage and suggest a suitable title for it : 10
- The sun is a great source of energy if only we could find a good way of using it. Its energy is stored in food by plants and animals which feed on plants and in this way it is the source of life. No one has yet invented a suitable way of using its rays to drive large machines directly. 'Solar batteries' are now used in satellites to turn the Sun's rays into electricity. They give power to the radio sets which broadcast back to the earth from space ships. Another idea is to use magnifying glasses or curved mirrors to concentrate the Sun's rays at a point. This point will become very hot, and perhaps the heat could be used to raise steam. The steam could then be used to drive generators. <http://www.onlinebu.com>
