3. Write a précis of the following passage and suggest a suitable title: 10
- Students should learn to think and act for themselves. No man has even been great by imitation. One great reason is that it is much easier to copy the defects and the objectionable parts of a great man's character, than to imitate his excellence. Alexander the great has a foolish tutor who used to call him Achilles. He was taught to admire that character. But when he came to imitate Achilles, what did he do? He imitated one of the most cruel and detestable actions in that life. He dragged the governor of a town through the streets after his chariot. This was because of the foolish teacher who taught him to imitate as well as to admire.

4. (A) Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions given at the end:
- Penicillin is one of the most useful drugs invented by man. With its help we can heal wounds caused by bacteria which cannot otherwise be healed. To begin with, very few people knew of this wonderful discovery and its use. First scientists and then ministers of governments were interested in it. Since penicillin could save the wounded soldiers, it could be helpful in war. And so they all decided to encourage the process of its manufacture. Penicillin, when introduced into the stream of the human blood, acts as an aid to those parts which are always fighting the deadly germs. It has not power over every kind of bacteria; but certain kinds are destroyed by penicillin in the great majority of cases.
